

Resources for Reparations Reconciliation and Repair

The end is redemption and reconciliation. The aftermath of nonviolence is the creation of the beloved community, while the aftermath of violence is tragic bitterness. Love is creative and redemptive. Love builds up and unites; hate tears down and destroys.- MLK Jr.

From Do Better: Spiritual Activism for Fighting & Healing from White Supremacy, by Rachel Ricketts

We are all right here, right now, for good reason. We are at the threshold of an entirely new era. A new way of living, being and connecting. The white supremacist systems that have governed the majority of the globe for centuries can finally be overthrown. But if there is ever to be a chance to change the world for the better, we gotta get it together. And we have to come together. Right now.

We must learn to tolerate the challenging and conflicting emotions that arise when we address racism and white supremacy. Emotions like grief, guilt, anger, shame, hope, anxiety, relief, fear, and sadness, to name but a few. We must acclimate our body to withstand our own discomfort and shower ourselves in compassion so we have a shot at bestowing that same compassion on others... Withstanding our discomfort also requires understanding that discomfort is a necessary and constant part of the work. Our goal is not to feel comfortable, because we won't. It is to better tolerate the discomfort that inherently arises. No matter your race, unless and until the violent and uncomfortable truths of white supremacy have resonated through your every cell, you will be unmotivated and ill-equipped to take the lifelong, daily and demanding actions required to dismantle all systems of oppression as they exist within and outside of us, and create a world where all humxns can finally breathe easy... Because we cannot heal what we refuse to reveal.

Reading From the book Emergent Strategy by Andrienne Maree Brown, a reading by Marie Varghese

“From its own fetal curves, green fiddleheads produce ancient spiral formations. The fiddleheads teach me to unfurl my own lineage & experience patterns- examine them, be with them, and listen to their messages. The fiddleheads are gifted time-travelers. If I don't learn the lessons now, the pattern will show up in my life like an unwelcome visitor. By meditating with the spiral in mind, I can focus my attention on re-encountering the old wounds differently and imagine a new possibility. The fiddleheads teach me the vitality of a perspective shift. The fiddleheads teach me to respect the slowest micro-movements & own my way forward”

Somewhere There's a Home, from Liturgies from Below

Somewhere there is a home
A place of rest,
Of Reunion

Safety and security
Of Peace
A communion of Friendships, equals
Not only in Gd's eyes
But ours too

Believing in that home
Gives us hope and strength

I will work to make that home
A house for you, for we
For us
I want to live there
With you
My children and yours
My parents and yours
My ancestors and yours

i will work to make that home
Today, tomorrow,
And in the days to come
Join me when you can
